New Mexico Environmental Law Center cases in litigation
during 2015 fiscal year (January 1, 2015 – December 31, 2015)

Case #1

Aquifer Science, LLC, v. Scott Verhines, New Mexico State Engineer.

This is a case in the New Mexico District Court for the Second Judicial District. It is case number CV-2014-07209. It is an appeal from an a decision of the New Mexico State Engineer denying an application for water use from the Aquifer Science company to supply water to a proposed development on its Campbell Ranch property. By statute, this is a trial de novo (essentially, a "do over") on the underlying issues upon which the State Engineer determined to deny the water use application.

The public interest here is in protecting the water supplies of persons who obtain water from the Sandia Basin--which the State Engineer declared to be closed to further development, as all water rights within it have been previously allocated and are used. The New Mexico Environmental Law Center represents two groups of citizens from areas adjacent to the proposed development whose usable water would be threatened by Aquifer Science, LLC being allowed to pump water for its development. It is also the case that this appears to be a speculative venture for the proponents of the development rather than an attempt to obtain a water right that would be put to beneficial use. Here, the purpose appears to be to upgrade the value of the property with water right in order to make it marketable.

The New Mexico Environmental Law Center has neither sought nor recovered attorneys' fees from an opposing party in this case.

Case #2

Augustin Plains Ranch, LLC v. New Mexico State Engineer

This is case number 32,705 in the New Mexico Court of Appeals. During 2015, this case also was litigated in the Seventh Judicial District Court of New Mexico, where the case number was D-728-CV-2012-0008.

In 2007, Augustin Plains Ranch ("the Ranch") applied to the New Mexico State Engineer for a permit to appropriate 54,000 acre-feet of groundwater from the middle Rio Grande Underground Water Basin. The Ranch proposed to take the water from Catron County in Southern New Mexico and export it South to Texas or North to Santa Fe. The New Mexico Environmental Law Center represents approximately 80 local community members who opposed the Ranch's application.

When this matter was considered by the New Mexico State Engineer, the State Engineer denied the Ranch's application. That denial was upheld by the New Mexico District Court for the Seventh Judicial District, and the Ranch appealed to the New Mexico Court of Appeals. In August, 2014, the Court of Appeals dismissed the appeal on the basis of a motion filed by the Ranch asserting that the appeal was moot. During 2015, there was further litigation in the Seventh Judicial District Court about whether the District Court case should be dismissed and whether the matter should be remanded to the State Engineer. That litigation was resolved by an order entered by the District Court in early February 2016.

The public interest in this case is the manner in which groundwater is dealt with in New Mexico. Groundwater in New Mexico belongs to the public and speculation in water rights is detrimental to public welfare. Additional groundwater depletion will dry up springs that support wetlands and riparian environments. The New Mexico Environmental Law Center's clients are concerned that the proposed appropriation of the groundwater sought by the Ranch will dry up the wells on which they depend.

The New Mexico Environmental Law Center has neither sought nor received attorneys' fees from an opposing party in this case.

Cases #3, #4, and #5

The following three cases all relate to the proposed Santolina development.

Case #3

Javier Benavidez, James Santiago Maestas, Roberto Roibal, SouthWest Organizing Project, New Mexico Health Equity Working Group, and Pajarito Village Association v. Bernalillo County Board of County Commissioners, and Art De La Cruz, Wayne Johnson, Debbie O'Malley, Maggie Hart Stebbins, and Lonnie Talbert, Bernalillo County Commissioners, and Consensus Planning, Inc. and Western Albuquerque Land Holdings, LLC
New Mexico Second Judicial District Court case D-202-CV-2015-04466

Case #4

Javier Benavidez, James Santiago Maestas, Roberto Roibal, SouthWest Organizing Project, New Mexico Health Equity Working Group, and Pajarito Village Association v. Bernalillo County Board of County Commissioners, and Art De La Cruz, Wayne Johnson, Debbie O'Malley, Maggie Hart Stebbins, and Lonnie Talbert, Bernalillo County Commissioners, and Consensus Planning, Inc. and Western Albuquerque Land Holdings, LLC
New Mexico Second Judicial District Court case D-202-CV-2015-05363

Case #5

SouthWest Organizing Project, the New Mexico Health Equity Working Group, the Pajarito Village Association, Javier Benavidez, Santiago James Maestas, and Roberto Roibal, v. the Bernalillo County Board of County Commissioners, and Art De La Cruz, Wayne Johnson, Debbie O'Malley, Maggie Hart Stebbins, and Lonnie Talbert, Bernalillo County Commissioners, and Consensus Planning and Western Albuquerque Land Holdings, LLC,
New Mexico Second Judicial District Court case No. D-202-CV-2015-05746

These three cases all involve the proposed Santolina development, which is a proposed planned community that at full build out would be home to approximately 90,000 people on the West Mesa of Albuquerque.

Each of the three cases was filed in the New Mexico Second Judicial District Court by the New Mexico Environmental Law Center on behalf of the following clients: Javier Benavidez, Santiago James Maestas, Roberto Roibal, the SouthWest Organizing Project, the New Mexico Health Equity Working Group, and the Pajarito Village Association. The cases were filed against the Bernalillo County (New Mexico) Board of County Commissioners, the five individual members of the Board of County Commissioners, and Consensus Planning, Inc. and Western Albuquerque Land Holdings, LLC, the two companies promoting the proposed development.

In the three cases, the New Mexico Environmental Law Center's clients sought to have the District Court review and vacate the following five decisions made by the Board of County Commissioners pertaining to the proposed Santolina development:

- The Board of County Commissioners' decision denying the appeal filed by several of the clients to the Board from a determination of the Bernalillo County Planning Commission (the "Planning Commission") recommending that the Santolina Level A Master Plan be approved.
- The Board of County Commissioners' decision denying the appeal filed by several of the clients to the Board from a decision of the Planning Commission approving the zone map amendment for the proposed Santolina development.
- The Board of County Commissioners' decision approving the zone map amendment for the proposed Santolina development.
- The Board of County Commissioners' decision approving the Santolina Level A Master Plan.
- The Board's decision approving the development agreement between the Board and Western Albuquerque Land Holdings, LLC.

These three cases were filed and litigated during 2015. In the course of that litigation, two of the cases (case #D-202-CV-2015-04466 and case #D-202-CV-2015-05363) were consolidated, and those two cases were still pending as of December 31, 2015. The third case (case D-202-CV-2015-05746) was dismissed before December 31, 2015.

There are several public interest issues at stake in this litigation. The first is where the water will come from for the proposed Santolina development. The New Mexico Environmental Law Center's clients are particularly concerned about this issue because they fear that use of water for the proposed Santolina development will reduce the water that is available for other users in the Albuquerque area, which is where each of the individual clients is located. The second public interest issue is whether the proposed Santolina development will lead to significant increases in traffic from the west side of Albuquerque to central Albuquerque, thereby causing significant pollution on the roads that connect Albuquerque to the west side. The third public interest is whether the children from the proposed Santolina development will exacerbate overcrowding that already exists in the Albuquerque Public School District schools that serve students on the west side of Albuquerque. And the fourth public interest issue is whether the development of the proposed Santolina development will cause increases in taxes for taxpayers elsewhere in Bernalillo county.

The New Mexico Environmental Law Center has neither sought nor recovered any attorneys fees from an opposing party in any of these three cases.

Case #6

Boling Enterprises, et. al. v. Oil Conservation Commission, et. al.

This is New Mexico Court of Appeals case No. 33,505.

Background – In November and December of 2007, the New Mexico Oil Conservation Commission ("Commission") held hearings on a new regulation strengthening regulation of oil and gas exploration and production wastes. The New Mexico Environmental Law Center participated in that hearing on behalf of the Oil and Gas Accountability Project ("OGAP") and presented expert testimony.

In May 2008, the Commission promulgated the final regulation, referred to as the Pit Rule. In July 2008 a number of oil and gas producers appealed the Commission's final regulation to New Mexico District Court. The New Mexico Environmental Law Center represented OGAP in its effort to intervene in that proceeding and its motion to intervene was granted. The case was dismissed as moot in August, 2016.

Public Interests Represented - Oil and gas exploration and production generates significant amounts of toxic wastes that can contaminate groundwater and pollute the air. The Commission's final regulation was passed with the goal of protecting groundwater. Rather than simply burying toxic wastes in unlined holes in the ground where waste could contaminate groundwater, oil and gas producers are now required to line waste pits and are required to recycle waste under certain circumstances.

Attorney Fees – No attorney fees have been requested or received by the New Mexico Environmental Law Center in this matter.

Case #7

Concerned Citizens for Nuclear Safety v. Ron Curry, Secretary of the New Mexico Environment Department.

This is case number 30,958 in the New Mexico Court of Appeals.

This case is an appeal of a permitting decision by the New Mexico Environment Department Secretary (then Ron Curry) at the end of November, 2010. It was docketed in January, 2011. There is a docketing statement on file and settlement discussions have been taking place in an attempt to narrow the bases of appeal. The original permitting proceeding under appeal in this case was the Los Alamos National Laboratory Hazardous Waste Permits HBW 09-37(P), HBW 10-04(P).

The public interest in the case involves protection of people who live near Los Alamos National Laboratory (LANL). Concerned Citizens for Nuclear Safety includes members of the Pueblo communities living around the LANL site, as well as people who live downstream and downwind of the facility. Proper, adequate and complete clean-up of the weapons building legacy waste is an abiding interest of many members of these communities. The purpose of the case is to either win the appellate issue or use it to force, in the settlement process, adequate clean-up of the facility.

The New Mexico Environmental Law Center has neither sought nor recovered attorneys' fees from an opposing party in this case.

Case #8

Gila Resources Information Project, Amigos Bravos, Turner Ranch Properties, L.P., State of New Mexico ex rel. Hector Balderas, Attorney General, and William Olson, v. New Mexico Water Quality Control Commission and Freeport-McMoRan Chino Mines Company, Freeport-McMoRan Tyrone, Inc., Freeport-McMoRan Cobre Mining Company, and the New Mexico Environment Department

New Mexico Court of Appeals cases 33,237, 33,238, and 33,245.

New Mexico Supreme Court cases S-1-SC-35279, 35289, and 35290.

This is a case that was litigated in two different courts during 2015. First, the matter was the subject of litigation in the New Mexico Court of Appeals in three consolidated cases: Court of Appeals numbers 33,237, 33,238, and 33,245. The Court of Appeals issued a decision in April, 2015, and, acting on behalf of its clients, the New Mexico Environmental Law Center sought review by a writ of certiorari in the New Mexico Supreme Court in Supreme Court case number S-1-SC-35279. That case was subsequently consolidated with cases S-1-SC-35289 and 35290. The Supreme Court agreed to hear the three consolidated cases, which were pending as of December 31, 2015.

These three consolidated cases involve a rule adopted by the New Mexico Water Quality Control Commission. Freeport McMoRan, Inc. (Freeport) is an international copper mining company that owns and operates several open pit copper mines in New Mexico. At Freeport's request, the New Mexico Environment Department (NMED) proposed a new rule to allow contaminant discharges at copper mines to pollute groundwater. The new rule would legitimize the extensive existing groundwater pollution at Freeport's mines and authorize more such pollution at Freeport's and all other copper mines in the future. The new rule was adopted by the New Mexico Water Quality Control Commission.

The New Mexico Environmental Law Center is involved in this matter because under-regulated open pit copper mines cause extensive and essentially permanent groundwater pollution, and approximately 90% of New Mexicans depend on groundwater as a domestic supply. The copper rule not only allows ground water pollution at copper mines, but it also sets a dangerous precedent for other types of mines and facilities.

The New Mexico Environmental Law Center has neither sought nor obtained attorneys' fees from an opposing party in this matter.

Case #9

Multicultural Alliance for a Safe Environment, et. al. v. N.M. Mining Commission
New Mexico First Judicial District Court, No. D-101-CV-2012-02318.

Background – In 2011, the New Mexico Mining and Minerals Division (“MMD”) held a public hearing on Rio Grande Resources’ (“RGR”) application to renew its Mt. Taylor uranium mine standby permit under the New Mexico Mining Act (“Act”). Although the New Mexico Environmental Law Center’s clients were prepared to present expert testimony on several aspects of the permit application, including the adequacy of RGR’s financial assurance for the mine and the adequacy of the MMD’s environmental review, the MMD refused to allow our clients’ testimony on these issues. Further, the MMD withheld, in its entirety, the economic viability analysis for the mine that RGR was required by the Act to produce. Acting as counsel for its client, the Multicultural Alliance for a Safe Environment (“MASE”), the New Mexico Environmental Law Center appealed MMD’s decision to exclude testimony to District Court and won on all three issues. In the fall of 2014, RGR, MMD, and the New Mexico Environmental Law Center’s clients resolved which economic issues should be disclosed.

In 2015, RGR determined that it would seek to re-open the mine, making the standby issues moot. In August 2015, MMD, with the concurrence of all parties, informed the court that it had complied with the court's order requiring financial assurance review and disclosure of economic information. The case remains open in the district court, although no further activity is anticipated.

Public Interests Represented – The public interests represented in this case are the public’s ability to meaningfully participate in public hearings under the New Mexico Mining Act and the extent to which MMD can withhold economic information about a mine under the Act.

Attorneys’ fees – The New Mexico Environmental Law Center has neither received nor sought attorneys’ fees in this case.

Case #10

Oil & Gas Accountability Project, et. al. v. New Mexico Oil Conservation Comm’n, et. al.
This is New Mexico Court of Appeals case no. 33,451.

Background – This case involves the regulation governing disposal of oil and gas wastes described in #6 above. As was pointed out there, in 2008, the New Mexico Oil Conservation Commission adopted a new regulation (the Pit Rule) governing disposal of those wastes. The Pit Rule’s chloride standard was subsequently amended in 2009 and appealed (#3, above). Under

New Mexico's new governor, in 2013 the Commission promulgated an entirely new Pit Rule, effectively rescinding and replacing the 2008 Pit Rule, including most of its important environmental protections. In February, 2016, the Court of Appeals issued a decision rejecting all of OGAP's claims. OGAP applied for certiorari to the New Mexico Supreme Court in March 2016. The Supreme Court refused to grant certiorari, and the case was closed.

Public Interests Represented - Oil and gas exploration and production generates significant amounts of toxic wastes that can contaminate groundwater and pollute the air. Nevertheless, the Commission's final 2013 regulation effectively eliminates all the important environmental public health and environmental protections that the 2008 Pit Rule provided. The New Mexico Environmental Law Center's clients appealed the 2013 Rule in order to challenge the legal bases of the 2013 Pit Rule.

Attorneys' fees – The New Mexico Environmental Law Center has neither received nor sought attorneys' fees in this case.

Case #11

Oil and Gas Accountability Project v. New Mexico Oil Conservation Commission
New Mexico Court of Appeals, No. 33,522.

Background – This case involves the regulation governing disposal of oil and gas wastes described in case #6 and case #10. As was pointed out there, the New Mexico Oil Conservation Commission adopted a new regulation (the Pit Rule) governing disposal of those wastes. On February 27, 2009, the New Mexico Oil Conservation Division ("Division") filed an application with the State Oil Conservation Commission to amend various provisions of the Pit Rule, which commenced an administrative action before the Commission. Among other things, the Division sought to change the so-called chloride standard applicable to on-site trench burial of oil field waste from 250 mg/l to 3000 mg/l. Despite its prior findings that the 250 mg/l chloride standard was necessary to protect public health and the environment, the Commission adopted the 3000 mg/l standard. The New Mexico Environmental Law Center appealed the Commission's decision on behalf of the Oil and Gas Accountability Project to the New Mexico First Judicial District Court in Santa Fe, New Mexico, on July 29, 2009. The District Court certified this appeal to the New Mexico Court of Appeals. This appeal was dismissed for mootness in August 2016.

Public interests represented – The processes involved in exploration for and production of oil and gas generate significant amounts of toxic wastes that can contaminate groundwater and pollute the air. The State Oil Conservation Commission's Pit Rule was designed to protect groundwater. The weakening of the chloride standard will result in increased risk of pollution of groundwater.

Attorneys' fees – The New Mexico Environmental Law Center has neither received nor sought attorneys' fees in this case.

Case #12

State of New Mexico, ex rel. Office of the State Engineer v. Elephant Butte Irrigation District, et al.

This is a case in the New Mexico District Court for the Third Judicial District. The case number is CV-96-888.

This is a proceeding to determine the extent of water rights belonging to the New Mexico Copper Company [NMCC]. As the rights claimed are within the Lower Rio Grande, the adjudication takes place as part of the fixing of all water rights within that area. The public interest in this case is in protecting the water supplies for people living in the town of Hillsboro, New Mexico. New Mexico Environmental Law Center represents these protesters. They are a group of citizens who are members of the Percha-Animas Watershed Association and a domestic water users association in the town of Hillsboro, New Mexico. They are concerned that if the total water rights claimed by the NMCC is allocated to it, their water supplies will be compromised. Their intention in this litigation is to limit the NMCC water rights to no more than the New Mexico Office of the State Engineer offered to NMCC based upon proven beneficial use.

The New Mexico Environmental Law Center has neither sought nor recovered attorneys' fees from an opposing party in this case.

Case #13

United States v. Curry

This is a case in the United States District Court for the District of New Mexico; it is case number 1:10-CF-01251.

Concerned Citizens for Nuclear Safety is an intervening defendant in this matter. The plaintiff is the United States Department of Energy which oversees Los Alamos National Laboratory (LANL), which is currently operated by intervening plaintiff Los Alamos National Security, LLC. The principal defendant is the New Mexico Environment Department. Concerned Citizens for Nuclear Safety litigated the issue of permissive intervention in the case and was granted that status on July 25, 2011. Since that time the case has been in settlement negotiations.

The public interest involved in this matter is in the adequate clean up of the pollution caused by LANL. Concerned Citizens for Nuclear Safety includes members of the Pueblo communities living around the LANL site, as well as people who live downstream and downwind of the facility. Proper, adequate and complete clean-up of the weapons building legacy waste is an abiding interest of many members of these communities. While CCNS, as an intervening defendant, has no basis for winning this case, by being "on board" it has a seat at the table in the process of negotiated settlement. This provides an opportunity to strive for a settlement that will assure adequate clean-up of the LANL weapons building legacy waste.

The New Mexico Environmental Law Center has neither sought nor recovered attorneys' fees in this matter.

Case #14

Vermillion et. al. v. Mora County, et. al.

This is case no. 1:13-cv-01095 in the United States District Court for the District of New Mexico.

Background - In April 2013, the Mora County Commission ("Commission") passed an ordinance that, among other things, banned oil and gas development within Mora County's boundaries in order to protect public health and natural resources, particularly water, within the County. One individual and several corporations sued the County, alleging that the ordinance is unconstitutional. The New Mexico Environmental Law Center is providing legal counsel to the County in defense of its ordinance. The Federal District Court issued an adverse ruling in a companion case, rendering the Vermillion case moot. The Vermillion case was voluntarily dismissed in April, 2015. The case has been closed.

Public Interests Represented – This case involves a challenge to a county's fundamental sovereign right to protect the health, safety and resources within its boundaries.

Attorneys' fees – The New Mexico Environmental Law Center has neither received nor sought attorneys' fees in this case.
